Giacometti est l'exemple type de l'artiste aux prises avec les difficultés de la création. A la fois dessinateur, peintre et sculpteur, il a édifié l'essentiel de son oeuvre au cours des vingt dernières années de son existence. Bien que tragique, sa vision de l'homme n'a rien de désespérée. Ses portraits aux regards effarés et qui interrogent, ses sculptures filiformes expriment certes notre solitude, la douleur d'être, la précarité de notre condition, mais ils affirment aussi avec autorité que la vie est finalement plus forte que tout ce qui la ronge et cherche à l'abattre..
